On July 1, 1937, famed aviatrix Amelia Earhart and navigator Fred Noonan took off from Lae, New Guinea on the longest leg of their flight around the world. They were never seen again. To this day the disappearance of Earhart and Noonan remains aviation's most enduring and puzzling mystery. Historian and author Marc Carlson will tell the story of that last flight, the legends, myths and possibly, the answer to what happened to Amelia Earhart.
